

People On The Move

Shelley Sabo, director of member services and quality improvement programs for The National Center for Assisted Living, Washington, D.C., was recently appointed chair of the Center for Excellence in Assisted Living's (CEAL's) Advisory Council. CEAL is a nonprofit collaborative of national organizations founded in 2004 that is dedicated to promoting excellence in the field of assisted living and fostering affordable options. It now is comprised of more than 27 organizations and represents a wide stakeholder community interested in assisted living.

Jeffrey Warren has been named director of residence services at the Allendale Community for Mature Living, Allendale, N.J. He will oversee all resident move-ins to the community's three senior living levels and serve as a liaison to staff at local hospitals. Warren's goals are to assist residents and their families in any way possible, from move-in assistance for senior residents to home assessments for those being discharged from Allendale Community's skilled nursing and rehabilitation center. Prior to joining the Allendale Community, Warren served as director of admissions for a Hackensack, N.J.-based senior residence; assistant clinical manager and charge nurse for a rehabilitation center; and staff nurse/charge nurse for the orthopedic medical/surgical unit at Meadowlands Hospital in Secaucus, N.J.

Touchstone Communities of San Antonio, Texas, has named Sandy Klein vice president of management services. Klein is expected to lead the marketing efforts, recruit investors, and oversee the integration of services provided by the company's key business partners.
